Help students find their pathway to health!

Colorado Rotations for Colorado Students.

Health professional schools from all over Colorado seek to provide excellent clinical rotations for students. As a real-world provider in rural Colorado, you have much to share and teach health professional students about practicing in rural areas.

Additional Benefits as a preceptor for the CU School of Medicine:

- ◆ Receive a Clinical Faculty appointment in the University of Colorado School of Medicine.
- ◆ Family physician preceptors may receive 20 hours AAFP CME prescribed credit per calendar.
- ◆ Rural preceptors may be eligible for a $1000 tax credit for tax years 2017-2019!

Benefits of Precepting

- Teaching young healthcare professionals keeps you current and energized about your field of practice.
 - Precepting prevents burnout.
- Precepting is a great recruitment tool.
- Point of Care Learning is the most effective teaching method and allows the preceptor to help improve the talents of students, improving care for countless patients.
 - Precepting is an opportunity to “give back” in return for the excellent training you received.
 - Precepting allows you to make a difference in where a student will ultimately practice.
- YOU can make a difference in the kind of provider a student will be!
